Dear Commissioners:

I know your time is limited so will try to be concise. I'm writing you on the topic of the Children's Television Act. I support the requirement that stations provide a specific number of hours of educational programming each week.

I also support regulation of obscene material (including sex and violence) on television. My philosophy is that although we have the Bill of Rights (with Free Speech and other rights to individuals), we must also understand we are in a different era. A different approach, or modifications, are necessary in properly understanding what is conducive to today's societal requirements.

The Children's Television Act may be a step in the right direction.

Sincerely,

Eric Steinkuehler

Dear Commissioner Chong:

FEDERAL COMMUNICATIONS COMMISSION
OFFICE OF SECRETARY

As someone who cares a lot about the future of our children, I am writing to ask you to please vote for new rules to require television stations to provide a specific amount of educational programming for children each week.

I am glad the Commission is considering these new rules to fully enforce the Children's Television Act. Please support a minimum of 3-5 hours a week of educational shows for children.

Broadcasters have at their disposal an invaluable resource for children. However, without stricter regulation, this positive potential for children will remain unfulfilled. Children are our future! With your vote for substantive and meaningful implementation of the CTA, all our children will benefit.

I am writing in support of the requirement that television stations provide a specific number of hours of educational programming each week, as proposed in the Children's Television Act.

As a working mother of two preschoolers, I have seen first-hand the impact that television has on our children. That impact can be negative or positive, and we need to ensure that positive alternatives are available for every family and every child in the U.S. Unfortunately, television is a large part of most of our children's lives; it's time we take some measures to make educational programming a part of their viewing options.

I am glad that the Commission is considering these new rules to fully enforce the Children's Television Act. Please support a minimum of 3-5 hours a week of educational shows for kids.

Broadcasters have at their disposal an invaluable resource for children. Yet the record shows that without stricter regulation, this positive potential for kids will remain unfulfilled. While our children can't vote, they desperately need legislators advocating for regulations to help them grow into healthy, productive individuals. The CTA is one of these regulations. With your vote for substantive and meaningful implementation of the CTA, all our kids will benefit.

Dear Rachelle and Susan,

As a parent and community family life educator I care a lot about the future of our children and am concerned about the hours inappropriate violent TV viewing many do daily. I am writing to ask you to please vote for new rules to require television stations to provide at least 5 hours of educational programming for children each week. These new rules would help to fully enforce the Children's Television Act.

It took parents groups over twenty years to pass the Children's Television Act, yet now, without these "quantitative" guidelines, we continue to be frustrated by the slow pace of compliance by broadcasters.

Commissioner Ness, Commissioner Chong:

I just received an email note about a proposal to require every television station to have three to five hours of educational television a week for children. If the federal government were paying for these stations, that would be fine. Then, if the stations chose not to comply, they could simply refuse the money. However, dictating to companies how they should run their businesses is wrong. Imagine requiring authors of romance novels to include at least 2 out of 7 pages talking about safe sex and the dangers of talking to strangers! Let consumers choose what they watch and what they do not watch. Education of children is great, but the job should not be forced on people who are trying to run a business. Furthermore, the education of children should be done by people who are motivated to do so, not forced to do so.
